

'Survive Today; Grow Tomorrow' Training for Owners and Senior Managers

In tough times, as company managers you face exceptional challenges:

- stocks rise as sales fall;
- you keep supplying goods and services, but customers delay payment;
- support from banks is hard to come by;
- bad debts push you closer to the edge.

In such circumstances, your company needs to adapt and change; to learn and apply new management techniques. And you need to do it quickly; time is short!

At Parrallel, we believe in active learning - and each of us at Parrallel is a product of that approach. We became trainers first by leading change ourselves, then by leading and teaching others how and when to change to improve their businesses. Our training courses emphasise those principles.

'Survive Today; Grow Tomorrow' takes you through a one-day classroom training aimed at helping you:

- diagnose critical short term profit and cash problems;
- pinpoint performance gaps and plan key changes;
- make changes happen fast;
- present your case to bankers and financiers;
- follow short-term improvement with a long-term plan.

Classroom training is followed by immediate and personal mentoring to help you apply the material to your own business. Over a tailored period covering three to six months, you'll get four half-day sessions with your trainer, planning and executing the actions that help you survive and grow.

Our Commitment

At Parrallel, our aim is constant: to help you understand and tackle your real problems and to train you and your team to keep up the momentum after we leave.
